Paul S. Flores' "Pilgrim Street" Premieres October 6th - 7th, 2018, Stockton, CA

Presented by Youth Speaks and Fathers and Families of San Joaquin, and

Directed by Sean San José

Written by renown playwright, Paul S. Flores, and presented by Youth Speaks and Fathers and Families of San Joaquin, "Pilgrim Street" begins a residency in Stockton, California on Monday, October 1st with a week of school visits & community engagement. "Pilgrim Street" premieres at Delta College Atherton Auditorium on Saturday, October 6th and Sunday, October 7th.

This riveting work from San Francisco native, Paul S Flores, follows the struggle to reunite families in Stockton, California who have been separated by Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE), foster care, and the school to prison pipeline.

Based on the testimonies of Fathers and Families of San Joaquin re-entry program participants, trauma center clients and staff members, "Pilgrim Street" imagines Stockton in the near future as family members attempt to recover connection to their loved ones in and out of the system without getting arrested or deported.

In a gritty Stockton community known as "Pilgrim Street" 20 years in the future, "Ninyo" is an underground fixer who searches for lost children by hacking the biometric data archives of a fictional tech company GrupeTech and solicits the help of Da Mayor to create a plan to recover and transform Stockton's children from victims to leaders of the future. As a theater maker, Flores intends to build community around "Pilgrim Street" to help reduce trauma and recidivism in Stockton and California.

"Pilgrim Street" is an theater art project intersecting criminalization, immigration, and citizenship at a time when vulnerable communities are looking for solutions and strategies to protect themselves from violence at the hands of hostile state policies.
